

April 5, 2006

Martin J Gruenberg, Acting Chairman
FDIC Board OF Directors

When I hear of the power Wal-Mart has and think about the power that it seeks, one quote came to mind.

"There is danger from all men. The only maxim of a free government ought to be to trust no man living with power to endanger the public liberty"

John Adams (1735 - 1826), Journal, 1772

What this quote means to me is that if any one man or entity has such power that we should not trust them with additional power especially the money of our nations citizens.

We should all be concerned, John Adams quote was as true then as it is today. Do not grant Wal-Mart the power they desire. When is enough....enough? They are already opening specialty grocery stores in AZ, which will in turn put better paying jobs at other grocers in the unemployment lines. Wal-Mart is dangerous for America, it's time we woke up and figured that out. The Worlds LARGEST employer pays poverty wages while they take in BILLIONS of dollars. Why should we support that any further?

PLEASE protect us from Wal-Mart's power, in my eyes they are just as dangerous to Americas freedom as the terrorists we fight today.

I thank you for your time,

Sincerely

Ginger Ditton